ACKNOWLEDGMENT

While a completed dissertation bears the single name of the student, the process that leads to its completion is always accomplished in combination with the dedicated work of other people. I wish to acknowledge my appreciation to certain people.

Professor Carmel Maguire, supervisor of my dissertation, has been extremely helpful to me during the entire period of my studies in the School of Information, Library and Archive Studies (SILAS), the University of New South Wales. As my supervisor, Professor Maguire worked closely with me during the proposal writing and during the period of my dissertation. Without her help and encouragement this dissertation would not have been written (or ever finished!).

I would also like to thank Professor W. Boyd Rayward, the Dean of the Faculty of Professional Studies (UNSW), and Dr. Helen Jarvis, the Head of SILAS for their support and encouragement.

Thanks must also go to all psychologists who participated in this research and whose cooperation and input made this research possible.

Special thanks also go to Dr. Harry Bruce for his comments on the study, and Mr. William Hood for his assistance with computer-related problems and his advice on the development of the online questionnaire employed in this study.

I want to acknowledge a special debt to Dr. Russell Cope, Dr. Connie Wilson, Mr. Paul McNally and Ms. Elsie Cole who reviewed several drafts of chapters of my thesis and provided me assistance and invaluable comments on my writing and grammar.
Ph. D candidates and my colleagues in SILAS, especially Dr. A. Hossein Farajpahlou, Dr. Zahed Bigdeli, Dr. Rahmat Fattahi, Mrs. Mehri Parirokh, Mrs. Zahra Hoda Fotovat, and Ms. Fen Zheng are acknowledged for their comments and assistance during the development of this thesis and I would like to express my thanks to them here.

Thanks are also due to psychologists, Dr. Ali Asghari Moghadam and Dr. Ali Sahebi, for their many helpful suggestions and comments on the statistical analysis of this research.

I wish to express my unqualified thanks to my wife, Firouzeh Razavi. I could never have accomplished this dissertation without her love, support, and understanding. I also wish to thank my sons Mohammad and Morteza and my daughters Zeinab and Zahra for doing their best to understand a father who had to be confined to his study for such a long time, making the SILAS and the UNSW libraries his home.

I am extremely grateful to my father, Gholamreza Rezaei, and my mother Shahrbanou Morovati who raised me and taught me to study hard and to give priority in my life to the quest for knowledge.

Last but certainly not least, thanks to people and the government of my country, the Islamic Republic of Iran. I could not have gone through the doctoral program overseas without their financial support. I would like to express my full appreciation to the staff of the Department of Scholarship, Ministry of Culture and Higher Education of Iran, especially Dr. Mohammad Ghezel-Ayagh, the Representative of Iranian Students in Australia and Pacific, for their generous support, both financial and moral.
